create as many or few tasks as you want, easily add descriptions, repeat tasks within an interval, pick from a list of categories, or keep it simple. Portable TaskPrompt Screenshot:Optimization of electroporation and electrofusion to produce transgenic mice using the PSA-enhanced green fluorescent protein (GFP) reporter system. In this study, we have produced transgenic mice by coelectroporation (P1) and electrofusion (P2) of fertilized mouse eggs with a construct encoding the enhanced green fluorescent protein (EGFP) reporter gene. While the electroporation experiments were found to be completely reproducible, fusion efficiencies and the number of pups were extremely variable. Using a wide range of parameters for the electroporation and electrofusion techniques, we were able to increase the efficiency of transgenesis from 1% to approximately 10%. We have also identified the factors which affect the efficiency of transgenesis and indicate that the size of the plasmid containing the reporter gene influences the efficiency of electrofusion. We have shown that the EGFP reporter system can be used to detect the presence of the transgene in the offspring at the DNA level and, moreover, that the presence of EGFP does not influence the development of the transgenic offspring.The present invention generally relates to a power supply apparatus and method of controlling the same. A known power supply apparatus is configured to generate a voltage by connecting a plurality of power sources together and supplying the generated voltage to a load. For example, a known power supply apparatus has a configuration in which a first power source and a second power source are connected in parallel to each other, and a voltage generated at a negative terminal of the first power source is supplied to a load via a diode in the forward direction and the second power source. The known power supply apparatus is provided with a timer for detecting the state where the power source voltage is not detected and notifies a user of the power failure. The timer sets a predetermined time to forcibly stop a fan (not shown) for cooling the second power source, for example, after a predetermined time elapses. That is, the timer forces the fan to stop the cooling process after the predetermined time elapses. However, it is impossible to know whether power supply from the second power source has been discontinued for a long time. Accordingly, the timer forcedly stops the fan. Thus, the fans are forcedly stopped in the power
